AT THE AVALLON
KING HENRY VIII

Charles Laughton brings to the Avonlea Theatre this week his interpretation of Henry VIII as England's most married monarch in "The Private Life of Henry VIII," a London Film production.

As directed by Alexander Korda and the story by J. L. Pin and Arthur Wimperley, "The Private Life of Henry VIII" presents in a light, humorous and modern mood the story of the 16th Century King and five of his six wives, two of whom had been executed, and two of whom were divorced.

Elsa Lanchester, in private life Mrs. Charles Laughton, plays Anne of Cleves, the German Duchess whose marriage was for reasons of state, and was very short and very funny, lasting only a day and part of a night spent over a card game. Binnie Barries plays the important role of Katherine Howard, who put aside her love for Thomas Culpeper for the crown of king and lived and died—regretting it. Wendy Brier, Merle Oberon and Evelyn Grey are the other wives and other important roles are portrayed by Miles Mander, Claud Allister, Lady Tice, Robert Donat and Franklin Dyall.

This is a special show sold on a straight percentage, so coupons cannot be accepted.

Raps Douglas; Government

Ridiculing Major C. H. Douglas, charging that the Dominion government was as irresponsible as any for alleged sweatshop methods in Canada and attacking super-nationalism with its "Buy Alberta," "Buy Canada," "Buy British" slogans, Rev. Father A. Macdonald, addressing the Calgary Kiwanis club Thursday, deprecated governmental interference in private business and declared that the United States was the biggest exponent in history of the world has ever seen.

"In the past two or three years we have heard from a number of prophets," he said. "We had a visit from one last week and now we have a new gospel, the Gospel of St. Douglas. Douglas saw disaster ahead unless we do something. He is probably right, but I have read of too much disaster in the past."

Father Macdonald referred to Douglas' attack on the banks as the only thing he brought out clearly, and declared that if that is all that is wrong, it could be "settled in five minutes." He urged more co-operation, but said some co-operation "does not stand the test of time. Alberta Government telephones was a co-operative effort when it started but now it is anything but."

Co-operative stores in England have had marvellous success because they insisted on shareholders owning $10 worth of stock, and they were only entitled to $10 worth of credit, he declared. The same principle was applied to co-operative banks in Quebec, with success, he said. "A lot of people want co-operative stores with $10 worth of shares and $1000 in credit."

He declared a "revolution, in a quiet, systematic way" had been going on in the past two years. Years ago the government could not handle any business except the post office, but does everything now, he said.

"Reason for establishing a central bank is that the banks are the only institutions making a profit," the priest said.

He referred to the Stevens committee investigating unfair trade practices and charged the government with being responsible for "sweatshop prices" in a large measure.

He said the government were buying trousers at $16.50 a dozen, and reputable firms could not make them for less than $24 a dozen.

"It looks strange to see Stevens carrying on such a campaign and yet the government does these things. I can't see how the government can take a hand against sweat shops and yet encourage them. If there is one thing lacking today it is a little common honesty and a little common sense. Too many people want something for nothing," he asserted.

"One of the curses of the world today is a super-nationalism. We have all got to the point where it is 'Buy Alberta,' 'Buy Canada' or 'Buy British,' and another crowd is talking about the gold standard. If we would exchange goods as we did before we would get along easily without any gold, and until we get back a little common sense we will not get along very easily," he said.

He declared there was more propaganda today than during the war.

"We used to boast about our parliamentary government, and now we appoint commissions which are above the courts and everything else. It is government by commission and order-in-council now, and every commission not responsible to the government or to the courts is Fascism. It is carried much further in the United States. The United States is the biggest experiment in militarism that the world has ever seen."

"There is a great deal of talk today about interest," he continued. "Every year ago the doctrine was thrift and economy. People who were thrifty a few years ago are today drawing interest on their capital. The new doctrine now is to spend. Thrift has almost been the basis of civilization, so it looks as though we are turning to a new system altogether. Thrift during the war was a virtue. It is a vice, I often think there is something wrong with a civilization that shifts."

"You men ought to try and do your thinking straight, and not pay overmuch attention to every prophecy. I would very much prefer if the prophets would take their prophecies in their own coin, but they prefer the coin of the realm."

"If we must have co-operation, then let us have it. We need a little pushing together and plain straight thinking. We should measure old virtues as we used to, I can't see the new doctrine that drawing interest, or thrift has become a crime. Thrift gives people a small reserve, and the trouble is there are too few with a reserve to fall back on."

"I am willing to take up any kind of co-operation, but it must be sound. A system that is going to give something for nothing will never pay. We have been trying it in this province for too long," he said in conclusion.

Reflector Law Has Passed

Approval of a change in the Vehicle and Highway Traffic act to require lights or reflectors on all vehicles, including horse-drawn, when stationary or in motion on main, secondary or district highways was given by the legislature when in committee of the whole Wednesday night.

The principal change from the original bill introduced, was to add "district" to main and secondary highways.

With the exception of one clause which is to be redrafted it was agreed in the committee stage.

The providing of lights on horse-drawn vehicles has been urged in the province for some years. It also has been proposed in the legislature on previous occasions but failed to meet with sufficient support to be adopted.

Need of compelling vehicles to carry reflectors on all highways was urged by several members.

Hon. O. L. McPherson, minister of public works, was opposed to such a regulation, stating that there were thousands of miles of highways on which no motor cars travelled. For that reason, horse-drawn vehicles should not have to display reflectors on such roads.

Another section approved by the house provides only Class "A" trucks from carrying passengers. Under the clause originally drafted, all trucks were to be prohibited from taking on passengers, the exemption applying only to men required to load and unload.

Discussion showed that heavy license fees were being paid by properly equipped trucks, while it was felt unfair for trucks to be allowed to also carry passengers.

Hon. O. L. McPherson, minister of public works, introduced an amendment suggested by the Alberta Motor association clarifying the regulation as to right-of-way at intersections.

The new section is as follows: "The driver of a vehicle approaching an intersection or cross-roads shall yield the right-of-way to a vehicle which has entered the intersection. When two vehicles enter an intersection at the same time, the driver of the vehicle on the left shall yield to the driver on the right."

SIGNS OF SPRING IN LEEDALE AREA

Leedale, April 18.—A flock of about 10 wild geese was heard hooting as they flew northward April 17. Ducks also promise to be plentiful and robins, bluebirds and meadow larks are now common here in the Medicine Valley. Farmers of the Leedale district expect to be on the land in less than a week, which will be three weeks earlier than last year. Gophers appear to be even more in evidence than in preceding years and have now been joined by June bugs, in spring propaganda.

French Explorer Expects To Blaze New Trail Over Rockies With The Aid Of Five Tractors

The broad back of the Rocky Mountains where they roll from Redfern Lake to the head of the Stikine river in British Columbia, is due for a beating this summer.

C. E. Bédouaux, French explorer, engineer and business man, plans to do it with an expedition equipped with five tractors.

Hitherto this area, far north of rail lines or highways, has been traversed by trappers and Indians, and then only on sufferance that they be men of heart and knowledge of the wild. Aeroplanes have flown over it, but the map-maker has put it on paper, but the explorer has not.

It is a gesture, this expedition of M. Bédouaux, and an adventure. It has the spirit that makes men fly over oceans of ice, to leave it all untraced and unchanged from what it was before it was known. The feature in this case is not in bringing some new area to light; though much knowledge will undoubtedly be gained, but in the manner of the doing.

One of man's most sturdy inventions has been the tractor, designed to conquer unyielding places. The surface of the mountain areas will be torn and their valleys and peaks close to the chug of a work-a-jolly machine. True, they will stand finished, and perhaps before the summer has passed may have flouted the effort; they may not consent to be steam-rollered without claiming a toll of human victims and therein lies the adventure.

The tractors will tread where ways can be found, and otherwise will swing across canyons, or be portaged across rapid waters. The expedition will really go from Edmonton to Telegraph Creek, B.C., 1,100 miles, but the great test will be the way across the Rockies. Already a contract has been made with an airways company to help pick routes and lay caches of gasoline, and men are being sent out to cut trails in the lower levels of the early route.

The size of the party is not definitely announced; but Madame Bédouaux will be along. She is the big game hunter, and plans to add British Columbia specimens to those she has brought down from many parts of the world. M. Bédouaux himself is primarily interested in exploration.

The five tractors will involve five drivers and two engineers to take care of them. Then there will be guides, horses, and men to drive them. For where the tractor cannot go, horses must be used as cables are owing and the machines transported through the air. Included in the equipment will be a 450-pound boat capable of lifting the 4,000-pound tractors. A rubber mat reinforced with logs will be used on rivers. Not only must mountains be crossed, but a way made over muskeg swamps.

The party should amount to a caravan of men, machinery and beasts when it sets out from Edmonton. The only in July to pursue its way to Fort St. John, B.C., and thence to Redfern.

For M. and Mme. Bédouaux the expedition will be just the latest of many in various parts of the world. It was on a trip home from the South Seas that they learned of the adventure and big-game possibilities of British Columbia; and the Sahara in Africa, and various parts of Asia, have been ploughed by their tractors. They both know British Columbia well. With a party which included 60 horses they staged a successful big-game hunt into the north of the province in 1932, getting as far as Redfern. In 1926 they hunted in more southern territory, that time with 37 horses to carry supplies.

Now the great broad back of a mountain range dares them and they have accepted the challenge.

Soviets Buy Nickel

Biggest Metal Deal Ever Made With British Firm

The London Sunday Express reports that the Soviet trading organization in London had bought almost 6,000,000 worth of pure nickel, the biggest metal deal ever made with British firms, consisting of more than 4,000 tons of the metal at a price between £200 and £225 a ton.

The newspaper said an additional contract had been completed where the Soviet will take 500 tons of nickel sulphate from British concerns.

Rivers Of Milk

Approximately 7,500,000 Tons Of Milk Produced In Canada In 1933

Figures recently released by the Canadian government indicate that the milk production in Canada for 1933 was approximately 7,500,000 tons. This substantial river of lactiferous fluid was produced by 3,733,400 cows, an increase in cow population of 27,900 over the previous year.

The production of creamery butter was 210,917,394 pounds, an increase of almost two million pounds as compared with 1932. Production in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta showed the most marked increase. Butter production was mostly on a home-consumption basis, and for most of the year values averaged from one and a half to more than five cents over export prices. Domestic consumption of creamery and dairy butter was approximately 321,000,000 pounds, which is equal to an average consumption of a little more than thirty pounds per capita. Canadians are among the big butter eaters of the world.

Cheese production for the year is estimated at 19,000,000 pounds. Exports of Canadian cheese during the year amounted to 74,168,000 pounds. The production of concentrated milk products was 84,928,470 pounds, of which 27,700,000 pounds were exported.

Farm Horse Prospects

Scarcity Of Horses In Canada Is Bound To Be Acute

There is today a very marked scarcity of big, sound, work horses, and owing to the slackening off in breeding, and the natural mortality of aged horses, the scarcity is bound to be acute during the next two years. From a breeding standpoint the industry is suffering greatly from a lack of high quality stallions of the draught breeds. Statistical returns indicate a decrease of stallions amounting to 8,000 head between the years 1930 to 1932, a situation which does not lend itself to a rapid increase in the horse population. Stallion owners report that the breeding season of 1933 was the most satisfactory experienced for some years, sires being used to an increased extent. The prospect for 1934, says the Agricultural Situation bulletin, is considered to be even more favourable.

Poultry Hatcheries

Department To Impose New And More Strict Regulations

Amendments to the livestock and livestock products act, introduced in the commons by Hon. Robert Blair, minister of agriculture, will bring about an important change in the regulation of poultry hatcheries in Canada. It is learned.

The amendments will authorize the department to impose new and more strict regulations upon all the hatcheries in any province in which the provincial government requests the federal authorities to act. Given provincial approval, the regulations will be compulsory.

It is hoped, by these regulations to bring the poultry disease, White, under control. It is said that many hatcheries in Canada are infested with this disease and that the proprietors have fought shy of federal inspection in the past. The western provinces are believed to favor the amendments.

Vegetable Gardener's Luck

Take A Little Precaution In Planting The Seeds

There is no trick in growing vegetables. Householders have been heard to say, "I have no luck with a garden," but failure is often traceable to carelessness. Very small seeds are buried, larger seeds are crowded together in the rows, weeds are allowed to smother the young tender plants, the seed-bed is hard and dry, drainage is bad, and a thousand and one other factors of which are controllable, according to information from the Dominion Department of Agriculture. With regard to planting beans and peas, they should be 2 inches in the soil; beet, cucumber, muskmelon, parsnip, radish, spinach, squash, and turnip, one inch; Brussels sprouts, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, lettuce, onion, pepper, and tomato, 1½ inch; corn, 1 to 2 inches, and celery, ¼ inch.

President Masaryk, of Czechoslovakia, who celebrated his 84th birthday recently is the second oldest ruler in the world. Coal carts in England are being lifted with rubber tires.

Canadian Flour Exports

Four New Markets Were Opened Up Last Year

There should be considerable interest in the question of where the flour ground from Canadian wheat goes.

The official records show that it goes to a great many different places—probably more than most people imagined.

As a matter of fact last year Canadian flour was exported to no fewer than 70 countries—and four of these, France, Portugal, Salvador and Alaska, represented the development of new markets for the Canadian product during 1933.

The total shipments out of the country reached, the large total of 5,570,424 barrels, with a value of $18,015,768 as compared with 5,131,781 barrels in 1932 worth $17,162,755.

By far Canada's best customer for flour last year was Great Britain whose purchases accounted for nearly 50 per cent. of the total exports of this commodity, Britain taking 2,489,447 barrels last year, which represented a considerable advance over the amount she bought in 1932.

Among the other large buyers of Canadian flour may be mentioned the Irish Free State, Newfoundland, Jamaica, Trinidad and Tobago, Japan, Hong Kong, Norway, China and the Philippines.

New Type Of Farming

Fields To Grow Hydro-Carbons Of Coal And Oil For Use As Power

Immediate start of a new type of farming, "hydro-carbon" growing, is announced, to begin shortly. The "hydro-carbon" of coal and oil for use as power, is urged by three Iowa scientists in a report issued by the Chemical Foundation.

A congressional hearing where they are invited to give their findings is announced, to begin shortly. The hearing is on the United States farm relief plan to mix 10 per cent. of corn alcohol with gasoline for motor fuel.

The Iowa trio hopes to show that instead of being simply a temporary relief, this use of "power alcohol" will inaugurate the great agricultural revolution predicted by scientists for the last 220 years. This is the growing of chemicals as well as food on farms.

Canada's Maple Products

Adverse Weather Conditions During Past Three Years Has Lowered Production

During the four years 1927-1930 inclusive, the yield of maple products in Canada, expressed in terms of sugar, averaged 31,356,129 pounds. During this period conditions were favourable, but in the following three years, as a result of low precipitation and adverse weather conditions during the maple season, production was greatly decreased, averaging 20,567,256 pounds of sugar. The 1933 production was 18,408,280 pounds. The wholesale price of syrup in 1933 was $1.24 per gallon and of sugar 8.5 cents per pound for maple sugar in 1932. The average wholesale price of sugar from 1927-1931 was 15.8 cents per pound and of syrup $1.54 per gallon.—The Agricultural Situation bulletin.

THERE'S YOUTHFUL CHARM ABOUT A BLOUSE

Plaided taffeta can be "tuck-in" or overblouse. Paris, ready as she always is with remedies for sartorial difficulties, has designed this smart shirtwaist blouse to suit many figures. A tuck-in blouse is most flattering to youthful figures.

However, for women who are not exceedingly slim, it is apt to give a huddled-up look. This season, you can have your way about it. Wear it tuck-in or overblouse. The pattern provides for tuck-in or overblouse. See sketch for overblouse.

Striped necktie silks, plain crepe silks, handkerchief linen, cotton chailis in necktie patterns, etc., are other nice mediums. It's simplicity itself to run it up on the sewing machine, and the saving is enormous.

Style No. 604 is designed in sizes 14, 16, 18 years, 36, 38 and 40 inches bust. Size 16 requires 1½ yards 35-inch material. Price of pattern 20 cents in stamps or coin (coin is preferred). Wrap coin carefully.

He is not particular whether the grease comes from black, brown or grizzly bear. Then a resident of Prince George advertised in the Prince George Citizen: "You do not need to send your bear grease to California. Local market will absorb all you have." Possession of bear grease is advised to hold their supplies for a rising market.

Science Masters Wheat Rust

Produce New Strains Of Wheat That Are Resistant To Rust

In two years' time there will be two or three new strains of wheat, resistant to rust, available for distribution to prairie farmers, according to a statement in the annual report of the National Research Council of Canada, recently made public.

For some years Canadian scientists have been matching their wits against the disease of rust in wheat, which attacks the growing plant and under certain conditions results in heavy loss. Canada, as one of the world's greatest wheat-growing countries, has had a special interest in combating this disease, and definite progress is now reported. "This," says the National Research Council, "must be regarded as a victory of the first magnitude for Canadian energy and skill." The work has been carried on by the Canadian Government Experimental Farms, the universities of the prairie provinces, and the National Research Council.

The problem has been not only to produce a type of wheat that would resist rust, but to embody in it the qualities which have made Canadian wheat the standard of excellence on the world's markets. This, it is claimed, has now been done, although the new strains are being subjected to thousands of tests before being released for general use.

Law Works Both Ways

Accidents In B.C. Now Covered By New Ruling

For ages it has been the rule under British common law that you could not sue a dead man. Automobile accidents have brought about events that make this old rule unjust.

So the law is to be changed in British Columbia. Attorney-General Gordon Sloan brought before the legislature some amendments to the Administration of Estates act which will enable the victim of an automobile accident, or any other kind of injury, to sue the estate of the man who injured him even though the motorist was himself killed in the same accident.

Similarly the executors of the dead man will have right of action for limited damages, covering hospital and medical costs, funeral expenses, etc., if some other person is to blame for the accident that resulted in his death.

New Use For Honey

Manitoba Women Using Honey In The Place Of Sugar

Honey is "in the news" this spring in much the same way that tomatoes were last fall. When the Beekeepers' convention was held in Winnipeg the importance of honey to Manitoba housewives was amply set forth.

Women in the country and in the city have proved that honey is a Manitoba product whose uses have only begun to be explored. Canning, preserving, pickling and baking are now being done with honey instead of sugar. Sugar, furthermore, has to be bought, but the honey can be home-produced.

A Useless Sacrifice

A resident of Bristol, Eng., was fined 10 shillings by a magistrate on a charge he used water for his goldfish bowl during a recent water shortage. The accused admitted the charge but declared that he reduced his own baths during the period, taking only two instead of the usual four so that his prized fish could have fresh water. Although he listened sympathetically to the story, the magistrate nevertheless ordered the fine paid.

Combined Air And Ship Route Across The Atlantic To Be Put In Operation This Summer

Big Offices Under Ground

New Invention Makes Material Test Possible At Great Depth

Underground buildings "of unprecedented size" may be constructed with safety by the use of a machine designed by Prof. Philip B. Buckley of Columbia University at New York.

In a progress report of an investigation carried on for the engineering foundation, research organization of the National Engineering Society, at the Columbia school of engineering, Prof. Buckley says that this machine, known as a "centrifuge" and intended primarily for safety work in mines, substitutes centrifugal force for gravity in testing materials.

A model, built of the same material as the structure to be tested, is placed on the centrifuge and whirled at such speed that centrifugal force tends to pull the model to pieces with the same relative energy that gravity would exert to pull down a larger building.

Prof. Buckley predicts that the device will open a new field in construction, since it will make it possible to build underground halls larger than any now existing.

"With the present tendency toward conditioned air and artificial lighting in place of daylight, there will be little objection to buildings underground," according to Prof. Buckley's report. "The temperature below ground is almost constant at 62 degrees Fahrenheit."

"In certain localities, much better openings are possible underground than above, so that with the safety of such buildings absolutely proven by tests on miniature prototypes, and possibly even office buildings, may soon be under way. Especially in locations where strong rocks are plentiful, as in New York city, are these underground buildings advantageous."

Prof. Buckley declares that the centrifuge will help conserve the nation's mineral resources by enabling miners to tap veins hitherto impossible to reach without danger.

Prof. Buckley's new machine will be able to test at a depth of 6,000 feet.

An Admirable Decision

Navaho Indians Drop Custom Of Adopting Whites For Publicity

The decision of the Navaho Indians not to carry on the custom of adopting prominent whites into the tribe for publicity purposes and to revoke the honorary memberships now held by Jimmy Walker, Douglas Fairbanks, Mary Pickford and others is entirely admirable.

There always was something and about these adoptions, which were a degradation from the original ceremonies of blood brotherhood. The Navahos display dignity and good sense in deciding to call a halt.

There is every reason why the Navahos should display these qualities. Given a desert to live in, they have managed to become a prominent tribe by raising sheep where no sheep were raised before. In addition they carry on the artistic tradition of their forefathers. Nothing more genuine and creative is produced in the Southwest than Navaho silver work.

It is good to see the Navahos displaying pride of race and a sense of tribal dignity. They do not need to flatter the white man or seek favors from him. They can with justice demand to be respected for what they are and what they have accomplished.—Detroit Free Press.

Something We Would Miss

Spring And Summer Would Be Queer Without Birds

Some morning soon the chorus will be full enough to waken you. Song will outdo the sun. As it grows from day to day, you'll hear in it a promise of freedom from the furnace-tending tasks of winter, of trudging through snow and slush, a promise of green fields and leafy trees, of flowers and vegetables and fruits, of the busy hum of nature and of long twilight evening. "How fine to have the birds back!" you'll say to yourself. Have you ever stopped to think what would happen if they didn't come back?

Must Be Done Slowly

Lois Of Time Required To Cook Eggs Properly

Here's something for housewives to shoot at:

Dr. Louise Stanley, chief of the bureau of home economics of the United States department of agriculture, knows a thousand ways to prepare an egg for breakfast.

She left a suggestion in a speech at Chicago, for housewives to remember in cooking eggs: It was "Don't rush the eggs."

Disparaging eggs are cooked slowly and with dignity. None of this slapping them in the pan and getting it over with.

A new combined air-and-ship route across the Atlantic, which will cut eight hours off the present crossing between Britain and Canada, will be put in operation this summer.

This new trans-Atlantic mail service, combining the ship-to-shore method being planned by a Canadian air transportation company, now being formed, and the British Imperial Airways.

A new route has been chosen by the Canadian and British companies, and the first stage will be by ship from England to Red Bay, in the straits of Belle Isle, and thence by flying boat to Montreal.

The flying boats to be used for carrying the mail from ship to the mainland will be loaned to the Canadian company by the Imperial Airways.

It is estimated that the whole journey will occupy three days 22 hours, as against four days six hours, the best trans-Atlantic mail crossing so far achieved.

The prospect of a direct Atlantic crossing has been momentarily shelved by the British aviation authorities because no machine capable of achieving it has yet been constructed.

The present plan, however, is really intended to give the Imperial Airways a breathing space to plan a direct crossing, while in the meantime experiments are being carried out with sea-dromes to halve the long hop necessary for a direct crossing.

The appearance of a machine which would be capable of a direct Atlantic crossing with a load of mail is considered to be not far distant, and the England-Australia air race in October is expected to reveal an aeroplane which will go a long way towards filling the gap.

British air experts estimate that the machine which will win this race should be capable of a direct hop from England to Baghdad, a distance of 2,600 miles. A direct crossing of the Atlantic is only a little over 2,000 miles.

Machines of this kind are already under construction by one big British company, and their performance during the England-Australia race will be carefully checked by those who are interested in the Atlantic air route.

Livestock Marketing

Prairie Provinces Will Co-ordinate To Make Proposals

Proposals of the prairie provinces in regard to livestock marketing will be co-ordinated to make a joint recommendation to the federal government. F. Hedley Auld, deputy minister of agriculture for Saskatchewan, said.

Others present at a meeting in Saskatoon, discussing the proposals were: Hon. D. G. McKenzie, minister of agriculture for Manitoba; James R. Bell, livestock commissioner for Manitoba; H. A. Craig, deputy minister of agriculture for Alberta; R. A. Wright, drinkwater, president of the Livestock union, and Dean A. M. Shaw, College of Agriculture, University of Saskatchewan.

W. H. Brown of William Brown, Limited, Manchester, England, bought 100 two-year-old cattle for export in April at a substantial price. G. Mackay of the Stockmen's Commission Company reports. The cattle were described as one of the finest bunches seen in the west.

Prospective Wheat Yield

Many Factors Apparent That May Seriously Affect Western Prospects

Several factors are apparent at the present time which may affect the prospective wheat yield this year. According to "The Agricultural Situation" bulletin, issued by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, drought over wide areas during the past five years has reduced reserve moisture, and favourable conditions will have to be experienced throughout the growing season to offset the effects of climate during the preceding seasons. Due to the emphasis being laid upon early seeding and the ploughing of stubble land before seeding for purpose of insect control some consequent reduction in acreage may be expected in the prairie provinces. Some reduction in average yield may be expected over large areas where grasshoppers and pest western cutworms will be present in outbreak numbers.

Factory Was Once Palace

Despite protests of the Turkish Tourists' Club, the huge, sixty-year-old wholly marble Sultan's palace of Tcheragan on the Bosphorus, a mile from the centre of Istanbul, is to be turned into a paper factory. It was used as the Turkish parliament and Senate House until 1910, and has also served as a prison for Sultan's brothers. Abdul Hamid II. shut up his brother Mourad V. there for 27 years.

Experiments at Cornell University show that vitamin G in rations of young chicks will promote growth and reduce losses by death.

An English party, comprising, bottom left to right, E. J. King, M.C., Sir Norman J. Watson, Wing Commander E. B. Beaman, R.A.F., and Clifford White, the latter of Banff, has set out from Vancouver to conquer the snowy altitudes of British Columbia's coast range. The unique part of the expedition is, these climbers are going to accomplish the difficult climb on skis. They are all noted for their prowess as mountain climbers, and it will be recalled that Beaman was a member of the expedition which conquered Mount Kamet, in the Himalayas, 25,400 feet, quite recently. Our top picture shows the type of British Columbia coast range over which the party will ski.

THE DOUGLAS SYSTEM

R. E. Ansley, Vice-Pres. of Red Deer Social Credit Group, drew a large crowd to hear his address on the Douglas's system of Economics on Monday evening.
 Plunging directly into his subject, Mr. Ansley said he found as a general thing that country people are more enlightened than citizens in larger towns on matters of economics. He noted the helplessness of political parties under present conditions. Mr. Ansley feels that in the next election the voters will not be concerned about parties, but about the politician's attitude toward finance.

With the aid of several charts the speaker explained his idea of Douglas System which he likened to the blood stream, and by which money, or credit, could circulate freely throughout the state, giving to every individual the necessary purchasing power and returning to the State Credit House at the end of the year, ready to begin its journey again.

Points of the Douglas System emphasized were: Proper Distribution and Free flow of Credit, Basic or National Dividends, the Just Price, or Automatic Price Control, and the speaker went into lengthy detail to make these points clear to his audience. An interesting and informative question forum followed his address. Mayor E. H. Jones presided as Chairman of the meeting.

le done by government; not by the banks.

In point of fact the monthly report issued by the Royal Bank have readily maintained that money could have been devalued in Canada for the purpose of sustaining price levels, that this should have been done, and that if it had been done the country would have been spared the destruction of the money value of its wealth that has resulted from unchecked deflation.

Here is banker testimony that money can be managed as a matter of public policy, and managed so as to maintain a fair and honest relationship between dollar values of commodities and property on the one hand and dollar debts on the other. Had that been done in Canada private debts could have been paid as they fell due, and deficits need not have occurred in municipal, provincial and federal treasuries.

OCCASIONAL WIFE

by EDNA ROBB WEBSTER
Author of "Joretta," "Lipstick Girl" Etc.

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt and Peter Anson, young and in love, marry secretly, desiring to live their own lives until Peter is able to provide for her. Peter is a young, struggling sculptor trying to win a competition for a scholarship abroad and Camilla is the adopted daughter of a wealthy family. She is not to inherit money when she comes of age and so is studying commercial art in the hope of landing an agency job. Others in the story are Avis Worth, another wealthy girl who is trying to win Peter; Sylvia Todd, Peter's model, and Gus Matson, his former roommate with whom he has quarrelled. At a party at an exclusive club Peter entertains Camilla's guests with impersonations. When the rest of the members of the party go to a cabaret to continue the gaiety, Peter and Camilla slip off to the beach by themselves and fall asleep on the sand. When they awake it is early morning and Avis and another boy are standing near them. This makes it necessary for Camilla to announce before the party that she and Peter are married. Bowman and Weeks, an advertising agency, where Camilla has submitted some of her work, and Mr. Weeks offers her a new account which requires unusual treatment of juvenile art. The critics were enthusiastic about her work, and Mr. Weeks offers her a salary of $50.00 a week to start and a prospect of having it doubled. She tells Peter of her good fortune in securing employment. Mrs. Hoyt is also informed that Camilla has obtained work and is going to leave the Hoyt household. Avis Worth rents a studio on the same floor as Peter, and invites her to have lunch there. He accepts reluctantly, but is favorably impressed with his visit.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER XXXVII

"All that has nothing to do with your problem, Peter," Camilla chided the subject abruptly. "Right now, what you need isn't more work, but more time and freedom from anxiety. I can take care of both of us now, and I am going to do it until you get established in your own work."

Peter rose hastily to his feet, almost upsetting Camilla with his sudden movement. "Not much, you're not!" he moaned with anger and disgust. His voice sounded cold, so that it chilled Camilla to the bone, at the same time his eyes blazed fire. She never would have believed that Peter—her gentle, adoring, amiable Peter—could be so angry with her. And over nothing at all. She was experiencing what every woman does sooner or later after marriage—the revelation of some fault or ignoble characteristic in the man she loves, and which she has not dreamed he possessed.

Her surprise at his reaction silenced her for a few moments, while Peter stood and gazed silently out the window. Finally, she ventured, "But, Peter, won't you be reasonable? Is there any sense in your doing odd work to pay your expenses when you are so rushed for time on your important work, when I can just as well help you?"

He hurried around to face her and demanded slowly, as if he measured his words, "Was that in our contract? You ought to know—you drew it up!" She attempted to laugh, as if this first quarrel must be a joke and they were only acting. "Oh, there were so many clauses in that silly contract that it would take a lawyer to remember them."

"Now you think it was a silly contract, do you? Well, get this! When I agree to do a thing, I do it. I'm no quitter! I suppose you are even sorry you married me, now. I don't blame you, and you can break the whole contract any time you want to."

Like all quarrels, every word aggravated new unreasonable. In Peter's overwrought state of mind, his chagrin at his poverty, and his unrecognized jealousy of Camilla, his reasoning was paralyzed. Camilla gasped helplessly. "Why, Peter! Please, don't talk like that. You must be ill. You are ill—you are working and worrying too much. You have to let me help you."

"Don't say that again!" he commanded angrily. "That shows what you think I am—a weakling. Just because you got started ahead of me, you're laughing at me—or feeling sorry for me, and that's all the same. If you think I like it that people will soon be telling me how proud I should be of my wife, you're dead wrong. There's nothing in the world I despise and dread more than living on the income of a wife who is more successful than her husband. I won't do that, even if I never do any better than I am now."

He had to stop for breath. But even that stride did not anger Camilla. "It only hurt her cruelly, caused little shivers of pain to tremble through her, radiating from her heart, where a great heavy hurt throbbed and ached."

"But you are doing splendidly, dear Peter. It is just that your work takes more time to develop. You really are doing so much more than I am, and it will be worth much more in the end, too. But you can't starve while you wait for the results!"

"I won't starve. I never have. And don't offer me your charity!" "Why, Peter?" she pleaded. "Was not offering you anything. What I have, is yours. And if anything I can help with your future, I am doing it just as much for myself as for you, don't you see? Can't I invest my money in our future?"

"No, I don't see it that way and never will. You refused to let me take care of you and now you expect me to depend on you."

"But that's different. If you had to take care of me, it would hurt your work. I can help you because of my work."

"Which is exactly the whole thing. You don't need to remind me of it." Camilla sighed helplessly. Words were useless in Peter's present mood. She never had seen him like that and didn't know what to say or do. Presently, she got up from her chair swiftly and went over to put her arms around him and rest against him like a hurt, bewildered child. "All right, darling. Let's not talk about it any more. I'm sorry—I suggested anything. I want you to do whatever makes you happy."

"Happy?" he asked. "Yes, I am." She drew back and looked up into his face quickly. His eyes wavered and turned aside without meeting hers, stubbornly. "In her arms, she felt his big body rigid, unyielding, and he seemed to try to draw away from her. Camilla's thoughts were clouded desperately, but she could think of nothing to say. She just dropped her head on his broad, linen-covered breast and tightened her arms around him. His arms hung listlessly at his sides, as if he were powerless to move them."

Finally, she said softly, without looking up at him, "Peter, don't you love me?"

He moved impatiently and drew away from her. "Of course. You know I do. That only makes it worse."

It was as if he had plunged a knife into her breast before, and now he gave it a quick twist to increase her pain. "Makes what worse?" she asked weakly.

"Way, if I didn't love you and had no pride—that is, if I hadn't the greatest things in life—I would think it was pretty soft to have a wife who could make enough for both of us, as some fellows do."

"I think you are making a mountain out of a sand pile," he said. "You would like to see me, but I don't want you to see me more than I do. Forget it, and let's go out for dinner somewhere."

"What with? I can't buy dinner for two with fifty cents. I get paid tomorrow, but that doesn't help me today. I love most of what is coming to me."

She would have said, blithely, had they not just quarrelled over that very thing. "Well, come along. I have money," but she dared not venture that suggestion now. Or she might have proposed that they go back to her hotel, but that would be the little useless refrigerator. But that would be like pouring hot oil on his wounds of false pride.

But was it false pride, she asked herself anxiously, and had to admit that it was not, to a certain extent. She was proud of Peter—even if he did exaggerate its maintenance under these particular circumstances. (To Be Continued)

Has Flying Become Easy?

After Three Hours' Instruction English Youth Makes Solo Flight

After only three hours' instruction an English youth gave such evidence of mastery of an airplane that he was permitted to make his first solo flight. At another flying school a girl of 15 is leisurely taking lessons because she is too young to be granted a certificate as a pilot, but her own plane as a sort of taxi service.

Has flying, then, become that easy? There are so many safety devices and planes are so built now, that flying is as safe as motoring, if not safer. There are far more automobile accidents than flying accidents, but an aviation accident is more "news" than a motor fatality. On this continent airplanes fly millions of miles each year and the percentage of fatalities is very small.

Flying a plane after three hours' instruction! How many motorists ventured out in a car alone after three lessons of an hour each? Some people take weeks to learn and some renounce the attempt altogether. And during the first attempts there are bent fenders and damaged garages.

We speak from experience!—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Largest Fishing Trawler

The world's largest fishing trawler will cross the Atlantic from France this spring to operate on the Grand Banks off Newfoundland, an international fishing ground for more than four centuries. Built at the Frederikshavn yard of Værsf and Flydek for the French owner, Joseph Oudet, the trawler is able to cruise the open sea for five months without seeking port and has a capacity of 1,400 tons of fish. She is named the Jutland.

Two duellists in France shot at each other three times and missed both ways. That's why the latest revolt in France won't amount to much.

Style In Writing

Newspaper Writer Aims To Make Things Comprehensive To Average Reader

Some of the newspapers are running pieces about style in newspaper writing. The Post of Lindsay, Ont., started it by announcing that on occasions Post editors are used by the instructor in English at the Lindsay high school as a horrible example of what literary style ought not to be, and the Lindsay editor replies that while teachers may be able to construct masterly essays they can't write good newspaper copy. The Lindsay Free Press carries the argument with the suggestion that students in English ought to be taught the "less formal literary style of the newspapers in addition to the 'heavy essay' which at present they are taught exclusively, and which is more characteristic of writers of two or three generations ago than of today."

Style has its place in newspapers as well as in more permanent works, but first of all we need to know what we understand by style. The Lindsay Post, for instance, is published in a small community, where everybody knows everybody else, and the editor writes mainly on homely topics, such as starlings and traffic accidents and other subjects with which all are familiar. His manner is easy and intimate, he uses few long words, doesn't pretend to any special erudition, avoids the pedantic, but no reader ever is in the least doubt about his meaning. He knows what he wants to say, says it clearly and without superfluous words, goes on to something else, and that we think is the first essential of good style in English.

No style is a good style, we submit, when it leaves the reader of average intelligence and application in a state of confusion as to the precise meaning the writer seeks to convey. Clarity is imperative. After that the writer can begin to worry about his split infinitives, the repetition of words, the balancing of phrases and sentences.

Most of the Canadian daily newspapers, many from the United Kingdom and the United States, come to the journal, and a close and continued study of them shows no good reason why their writers should bow to instructors in English as superior craftsmen. A newspaper writer may be weak in the rules of grammar which are familiar to his high school class. But whether he is describing a fire or discussing a political problem, he is trained to make his thoughts comprehensive to the average subscriber who reads and runs. He doesn't write essays, but he writes news and views, as a rule, in a manner which is making the term "journalism" one of high commendation.—Ottawa Journal.

Cast Up By The Sea

Letter In A Bottle Consigned To Waves Thirteen Years Ago Is Delivered

Thirteen years ago Patrick Boyle of the Irish Free State found a letter in a bottle cast up by the sea, and forthwith became an emergency courier on a mail boat's chance. Now he has proof the letter was no hoax.

The epistle was consigned to the North Atlantic's capacious mail box July 20, 1920, from a vessel "nipped in the ice" off Port Burwell in Ungava Bay, where a Quaker's chance courier on a mail boat's chance found it. The woman to whom it was sent, when Patrick stumbled across the bottle at Falmore the following March, was Mrs. R. M. Walker, of 86 St. Paul street, Montreal. Now she is Mrs. M. Hope of Howe street, Vancouver.

Neighbors laughed at Patrick when he walked to the post office to mail the letter in 1921. The only Port Burwell they knew of was on the shore of Lake Erie. But at last he was vindicated.

Mrs. Hope's letter was delivered after crossing the Atlantic a couple of times more in a regular mail pouch, as it followed her to Russia, Germany, Belgium, Montreal, Winnipeg and back to London.

She has written Patrick apologizing for delayed acknowledgment, and regretting customs regulations prevent her from having the bottle filled with good old Irish whiskey.

Helping Home Industry

In order to promote patriotism, help home industry—and, incidentally to raise funds—the Canton government has issued an order that all "institutes, social bodies, public bodies and commercial firms" must hereafter fly the national flag. Moreover, all flags must be made from native China silk, and the flag sales will be a government monopoly. When no flags are flown, heavy fines will be collected.

Has Metal Larynx

Clarence Peterson of Ephraim, Utah, has regulated his power of speech through an ingenious metal box equipped with a vibrating reed. Telephone engineers designed the apparatus and surgeons placed it in Peterson's throat. He was again able to speak and to whistle after being speared for a year as the result of growth in his upper trachea which forced removal of the larynx.

Have Voted For Centuries

Manx Laws Relating To Women Are Very Generous

Women of the Isle of Man for centuries have had the right to vote and the Manx laws relating to women and children, especially to widows, are very generous. Mrs. Hugh Campbell, a native of the island, told a gathering of women in Montreal. Women of the Isle have more privileges legally and probably are more nearly on an equality with men than in any other place in the world. An annual ceremony which is perhaps the oldest in the history of representative government takes place on Midsummer's Day, July 5, on Tynwald Hill when the legislators gather to read to the assembled people the laws that have been made and ask if they may be promulgated. The scene along the tower-scattered road leading to Tynwald reminds one of a miniature Derby, said Mrs. Campbell.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

YOUR PRAYERS

I shall not ever be alone again. However far my road, However far from all the paths of men May be my poor abode.

I shall not shrink in fear of solitude Nor dread the silent days When winter will come storming, harsh and rude, And snow will shroud all ways.

For still about me wing your prayers each hour, They fold me round about As tenderly as south winds woo a flower; Your prayers shall sorrow out, Intangible, and yet as strong as steel, Your prayers have armed me well; Close, close about my life your love I feel, That only prayers can tell.

Half Century Of Service

Fortieth In Montreal Bindery Can Boast Of Fine Record

Miss Evelyn Valle, fortieth of the bindery of the Christian Brothers, a Montreal institution printing plant, can boast a fine record of 53 years service with this plant.

She looks and acts far younger than the age her record reveals, and it is interesting to note she supervises girls who have been in the employ of the institution for from 12 to 20 years. She is to be found at her desk every day.

Miles flown by British aircraft last year were much higher than in 1932.

It takes a strong man to resist an invitation to make a speech.

Little Helps For This Week

"Thou shalt be steadfast and shall not fear, because thou shalt forget thy misery, and remember it as waters that pass away." Job 11:19-20.

In the bitter waves of woe, Beaten and tossed about By the swollen waters that blow From the desolate shores of doubt, Where the anchors that faith has cast Are dragging in the gale, I am quietly holding fast To the things that cannot fail.

In the darkest hour through which a human soul can pass, whatever else is doubtful, this at least is certain. If there be no God and no future state, even then it is better to be generous than selfish, better to be true than false, better to be brave than to be a coward. Blessed beyond all earthly blessedness is the man, who in the tempestuous darkness of his soul has dared to hold fast to these venerable landmarks. Thrice blessed is he, who when all is cheerless within and without, has obstinately clung to moral good. Thrice blessed because his night shall pass into clear bright day.—F. W. Robertson.

New Regulations For Receiving Gold Bullion

Origin Must Be Readily Recognized At Royal Mint

An effort to further discourage the melting down of gold coins which are legal tender in Canada is made by the minister of finance in the new regulations for the receipt of gold bullion at the royal mint, Ottawa.

In future old jewelry and dental scrap will not be purchased if it has been melted or otherwise treated in such a way as to prevent its origin being readily recognized. It is unlawful to melt down gold coins which are legal tender in Canada and this regulation will make it impossible for anyone to benefit by breaking the law since the gold cannot be legally exported.

Bars Jazz On Sundays

Strict Regulations Of Chief Constable Of Northampton, England

Jazz and dance music must not be played in Northampton houses on Sundays. This pious prohibition was made by the Chief Constable of Northampton in England.

He does not object, however, to classical music or to wireless, provided that radio loud-speakers are not so loud as to be heard by passers-by.

The playing of all games in public-houses is also prohibited in the town on Sundays, and programmes of all Sunday concerts must be censored by the police several days before the performances.

Sign Of Better Times

When times are dull men are anxious to serve on juries. When things pick up juries almost have to be conscripted. Of 700 jurors summoned for the March term of the Supreme Court in New York, only 300 were willing to act.

That's a sign of better times.

Modern heating systems are so painfully efficient, they keep a home in January at temperatures that drive one out of town in July.

Motorist—How far is it to the next town?

Native—Well, it seems further than it is, but you'll find it aint.

Unusual Causes Of Fire

Things People Never Think About Are Often Dangerous

There has recently been a scare about explosive sun-goggles. The cheap variety appears to be made of celluloid which will blaze up at the mere touch of a burning cigarette.

While most of us know all about the perils of celluloid we rarely give a thought to the numerous fire perils which surround us. Damp lamp black will ignite with no greater heat than the sun's rays and new printer's ink on paper will quickly begin to smolder if it happens to be against a radiator or hot steam pipe.

One of the worst tank fires in New South Wales was caused by phosphorus paste laid down to kill rabbits. The mixture drying under the hot sun caught fire and started a most disastrous conflagration.

Been burned down a house near Sydney in Huntingdonshire. They had built a nest in a chimney and when the first fire of the autumn was lighted, wax melted, ran down, blazed up, and set fire to the house.

How To KEEP FIT

When your physical regularity is disturbed, and you feel sluggish and "headachy," the way to keep in the best of health is to take several successive days until the normal state of the body is restored. The first day, take a glass of water and a glass of orange juice. Then, when normal habits are re-established, follow the Andrew's Rules of Health.

But moderately. Get rid of sleep from air and food. And take a warm, dry, breezy place of Andrew's Live Salt once or twice a week. This good food will surely keep you. Get Andrew's from your druggist. In the U.S. and Canada, large health food stores. Agents: John A. Huston Co. Ltd., Toronto.

GULL LAKE COTTAGE ROBBED

The Belcher cottage at Gull Lake was entered by thieves one night last week and a quantity of goods were stolen. Otto Wonnler, caretaker of the beach, discovered the break-in and immediately notified the police, with the result that an Indian man was captured, and the stolen property recovered. The culprit came before Magistrate Jones on Monday, and was remanded for three months in order that provision might be made for her entry to one of the Indian schools. The girl was 15 years old and had never been to school.
